TO END WAR HIS AIM

Taken into Custody Assailant Claims
He Wished to Persuade Head of Banking House to Stop Conflict.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, July 3.—J. P. Morgan, head of the banking house of his name and financial agent in this country for the British government, was shot twice at his country home at Glen Cove, Long Island, by a man who said that his name was Frank Holt, and that he was in instructor in German at Cornell university. He entered the Morgan home shortly after nine o'clock today.

Not Seriously Hurt.
It was said Mr. Morgan was not seriously wounded. One of the shots, it is reported, took effect in his hip, the other in his breast, tearing the flesh and passing out through his arm. The assailant was overpowered by servants, placed in the Morgan automobile and rushed to Glen Cove.

He at first refused to give his name, stating he was a "Christian gentleman," and felt it his duty to persuade Mr. Morgan to end the war. The effect on the stock market was hardly noticeable.

Holt came to Glen Cove this morning on the 8:53 train, hired an auto, and went to the Morgan home on Matinecock Point. He rang the bell and when the butler answered the call he called for Mr. Morgan. He said he was an old friend of Mr. Morgan, but was refused admission to the house.

Holt then pressed a pistol against the stomach of the butler, who screamed, and Holt pushed his way past the servant into the hall. Mr. Morgan was approaching the front door through the hall at the time. He asked what the trouble was. The answer a shot which took effect in his hip. Mr. Morgan staggered and fell into a chair. The butler, once the assailant's back was turned, picked up a brass coal hod from the fireplace and brought it down on the assailant's head, but too late to prevent a second shot. The butler fell on Holt, wrestled the weapon away and overpowered him. Servants came running in answer to his call and the sheriff's office and physician were telephoned for. Holt was placed under arrest and taken to Glen Cove. There he refused to say anything at first, not even giving his name.

Satchel Full of Dynamite.
The satchel which Holt brought to Glen Cove was found near the hedge of the Morgan property. It was filled with dynamite. It was said he was seen carrying it in the neighborhood of the Morgan home.

He is declared by officials at the court house where he was taken, to have said he was of German descent and was willing to give up his life at any time to end the war. It was added that he declared Mr. Morgan was responsible for the war and for the shipment of arms abroad and he would stop the conflict if he wished.

Another version of the shooting of Holt into the Morgan house, is to the effect that he had no trouble in gaining admission. He went to the door and asked to see Mr. Morgan, saying he was an old friend. Word was taken to Mr. Morgan that someone wanted to see him.

The financier came out of his breakfast room to the main hall. Immediately on his appearance Holt shot him. He had two revolvers and used them both.

There is still some discrepancy in the statement as to just where the shots were fired. While the report has it that the first shot wounded him in the leg and the second near the top of the stomach, the wound inflicted here is the more serious of the two.

It is related that several shots were fired by the assailant, but that only one went wild.

Physicians were hastily summoned and after examining the wound, stated that it was not their belief that he would prove necessarily fatal.

Wanted to End War.
Holt was arraigned before a justice of the peace. He said he had no quarrel with Mr. Morgan, personally, but felt that the time had come for the war to end. It was becoming more and more unbearable, he said, and it was his firm belief that he should go to Mr. Morgan and ask him to end it. This, he knew, Mr. Morgan could accomplish, because of his great influence.

He wanted to see Mr. Morgan in person with him, the man said. "I have nothing against him."

The assailant was cut over the eye by the blow from the coal hod and had been bleeding freely. He was also bleeding from the wound of his encounter with the Morgan servant.

Morgan Answers 'Phone.
Glen Cove, July 3.—Mr. Morgan apparently did not consider himself seriously wounded. When it was reported he was shot, the Morgan house was the target of telephone inquiries from New York. The first of these calls was answered by Mr. Morgan himself, who calmly told of the shooting and added that he did not think it amounted to very much.

Wilson W. Butler.

Wilson W. Butler, contracting engineer and important official of two Canadian steel companies, says he is "sore at" J. P. Morgan & Co. for not giving Canadian manufacturers more war orders. Until very recently the Morgan company has been the British government's representative on this side. "I personally have eight factories that are idle," says Butler.

When the news of the shooting of Mr. Morgan reached financial circles in New York, the question was raised as to whether the financier's activities in connection with the European war had anything to do with the motive of the attack upon him. The house of J. P. Morgan & Company was the purchasing agent of the British government for munitions and supplies bought in this country.

It was only this morning that the announcement had been made in the New York newspapers of details of the plan of a great number of bankers, of which Mr. Morgan was one of the leaders, for the flotation in this country of $100,000,000 of the new British war loan.

In March last Mr. Morgan crossed the ocean on a mission which he himself did not disclose, but which was generally supposed to be for the arrangement of credits in this country for the powers at war with Germany.

Firm's Activity Criticized.
The arrangement under which the Morgan firm was appointed commercial agent of the British government in the United States during the war, was widely criticized. On the other hand it has not met with satisfaction among a large number of American contractors for supplies. They complain that in some cases they were rivals of the Morgan firm in special lines of commerce.

In England the criticism of the arrangement was carried into parliament and only yesterday was debated there. Lord Grimthorpe, a banker member of the house of lords, urged that Canada should have the preference in orders for steel and other war materials, and that the big shadow of an interloper stands between her and the government.

Barth Curzon, lord of the privy seal, replying to this speech, informed the house that the Morgan company was acting as British agents on a commission of only one per cent.

"Within the last twenty-four hours," he said, "I have seen testimony from the highest authority that the Morgan arrangement has assured as the best efficiency and economy and has been most beneficial to the government of the country."

Assailant in Custody.
With three guards the assailant was placed in one of Mr. Morgan's automobiles and hurried at top speed to Glen Cove. The satchel which was left in the hall after the man was thrown into the car. When it was opened the dynamite in it was found to be of the sixty per cent nitro-glycerine kind, which explodes much easier than the forty per cent kind commonly used by contractors. The man was searched at Glen Cove. In his pocket was found a second pistol, the latter of twenty-two caliber, while the weapon which was used in the attack was 38-caliber. The terrible force of the blow the assailant received from the coal hod caused him to bleed profusely and appeared to be weakening as the day passed. Although he appeared to be but little hurt at first, he became, or feigned to become, dazed about noon. It was thought possible he was suffering from a fractured skull.

Instructor at Cornell.
Thaca, N. Y., July 3.—Frank Holt is not in Thaca and is believed here to be in New York City. He has been in Thaca at two points during the past year, coming here from a university in West Virginia.

He is of German descent, but not much is known of him. He is described as about 35 years old, tall, dark hair, large features, and married. He is not a Cornell graduate and was to go to the University of Texas next fall as professor.

WILL NOT BURY DIAZ
IN HIS NATIVE LAND

WHILE SERVICE PLANS ARE NOT
ANNOUNCED, EX-MEXICAN
RULER MAY BE BURIED IN PARIS.

REVIEW OF HIS LIFE

Ruler of Mexico for Thirty Years Did Not Regret His Resigning From the Disturbances of Nation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, July 3.—Members of the family of Porfirio Diaz have not yet determined what arrangement will be made for the funeral of the late president of Mexico, except that it will be of simple character, in keeping with his quiet life in Paris.

Distressed by Civil War.
The former president died last night as the result of a complication of diseases, due to advanced age. General Diaz during his four years' residence in Paris, made few acquaintances among the French people. He received a good many Mexican but became more and more distressed by the disorders in Mexico which reached him by letters and by persons, who gave him pessimistic accounts of the conditions and destruction of his institution.

It does not appear that General Diaz ever regretted his resignation from the presidency of Mexico. Thirty years of rule, not that he felt inclined to return nor missed his power. Nothing that he told his friends would indicate a candidate for president, but in 1877 he was elected to fill the unexpired term of the fugitive president, Lardo. His last and eighth election was in July, 1910.

Reviews Own Career.
The last with which General Porfirio Diaz announced, on May 25, 1911, his resignation from the Presidency of Mexico after having been master of the country for thirty years, gives in his own words an interesting glimpse of his remarkable career. It reads:

"Sir: The Mexican people who generously have covered me with honors who proclaimed me as their leader during the international war, who patriotically assisted me in all works undertaken to develop and prosper the commerce of the Republic, establish its credit, gain for it the respect of the world and obtain for it an honorable position in the concert of nations—that same people, sir, have revolved in armed military bands, stating that my presence in the exercise of the supreme executive power is the cause of this insurrection. I do not know of it, and I am unable to me which could have caused this social phenomenon, but permitting, though not admitting, that I may have been culpable, I am unable to reason out and decide my own culpability. Therefore, respecting as I have always respected the will of the people, and in accordance with article 82 with the Federal Constitution, I come before the Supreme Representative of the nation in order to resign."

"I hope, gentlemen, that when the passions which are inherent to all revolutions have been allayed, my countrymen and just study will bring out in the national mind, a correct judgment, which, when I die, I may carry graven on my soul as a devoted and with devote to my countrymen."

Displaced by Madero.
The revolution led by General Francisco Madero, Jr., brought about the aged President's reported pledge early in 1911 to resign his office in a bargain for peace, but on May 24, the day in which the nation was expected, it was not forthcoming. Riots occurred that day in Mexico City, during which many persons were killed. The National Congress was stormed by mob violence. "Villa Madero" and demanding to know why Diaz did not resign. The next day he read his letter of resignation to the Chamber of Deputies. A large number of deputies, who were his loyal supporters, rose and bowed their affirmation as their names were called.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, Francisco Leon de la Barra, immediately chosen Provisional President and Diaz, of whom for thirty years all Mexico had stood in awe, left the capital secretly the next day, to embark at Vera Cruz for Europe. Since then he had lived virtually an exile in Paris and other European cities, a silent observer of still more troublous times in the land he had once ruled.

The views General Diaz held of these subsequent happenings were reported mainly by rumor. He authorized but few interviews, and those in the main were those of an old man grieved over his own misfortunes and peace re-established, and was often quoted as saying that he was glad to see President Huerta to quit to prevent a foreign war. He was repeatedly reported on the point of returning to Mexico, but he declined the offer, and he made a special study of military science. He and one other were the only two in the country who dared openly oppose the continuation of Santa Anna's dictatorship. His execution was ordered, but he escaped and joined Herrera's Revolt. He speedily made a reputation as a soldier, and as a privateer-general, he was the chief thorn in the side of the French forces, when, taking advantage of the Civil War in the United States, they

Born in 1830.
General Diaz was born in 1830. His family were of old Spanish stock with an infusion of Indian blood. Left fatherless at the age of three, he was educated at the expense of the nation of Oaxaca with the intention of becoming a priest, but he eventually turned to law and then at the outbreak of a civil war he joined the army and served throughout that struggle in a militia company which he helped organize, and after peace was declared he made a special study of military science. He and one other were the only two in the country who dared openly oppose the continuation of Santa Anna's dictatorship. His execution was ordered, but he escaped and joined Herrera's Revolt. He speedily made a reputation as a soldier, and as a privateer-general, he was the chief thorn in the side of the French forces, when, taking advantage of the Civil War in the United States, they attempted to place Archduke Maximilian of Austria on the throne of a Mexican empire. Diaz harassed the enemy constantly, and in June, 1857, captured Mexico City with his forces. In the re-establishment of the republic he was unsuccessful as a candidate for president, but in 1877 he was elected to fill the unexpired term of the fugitive president, Lardo. His last and eighth election was in July, 1910.

To Diaz was given credit for the advance of Mexico to the status of a stable, progressive and prosperous government, although the autocratic methods he employed were widely criticized.

GOOD OLD UNCLE SAM
CELEBRATES MONDAY

Won't Observe Tomorrow as He's Too Much of a Christian—Eagle to Scream Throughout State.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., July 2.—Uncle Sam is 139 years old tomorrow, but being a good Christian he is not going to celebrate until Monday.

Practically every city and village in Wisconsin has adopted the "National Day" plan. There will be a noticeable absence of fireworks, bombs, and other life-destroying and nerve-shattering noise makers. There will be no lack of patriotism, however, and his emotion will find an outlet in speech-making, parades and carnival features.

Five thousand school children will enact the story of the growth and development of Wisconsin in the celebration planned for this city. The pupils of 35 public and parochial schools, divided into eight sections of 400 pupils each, will gather at their respective schools at 9 o'clock, and march to the nearest of the eight city parks, where the performances will be held.

The performances will begin with the singing of the national anthem, and their reception by the Indians; then will follow a May festival of the immigrants from New England. This will be followed by the singing of the German hymn, and conclude with Columbia, Peace and Patriotism welcoming the nations of the earth. Each act will be divided into four scenes.

Gov. Philipp will be the speaker of the date at Rhinelander. The program of that city is in the hands of the men of Co. L. W. N. G. and the celebration is the biggest celebration in its history.

The features at Sheboygan will be the burning of the old schooner Lotus off the lake front in the evening. A big parade, in which military and athletic organizations, school children, city officials and businessmen will participate, is scheduled. The citizens of Manitowish will have been invited to attend the Sheboygan celebration in a body. Two Rivers also extended an invitation to Manitowish.

The committee in charge at Superior proposed to erect a tower avenue city a highway during the day. Only the American flag will be used in the decorations.

Depere will have an old-fashioned parade consisting of a run by the fire department, aquatic and athletic events, a parade, and fireworks in the evening.

The idea of making the celebration a day of peace, and the money donated will be spent in furthering that plan. Folk dances have been made a feature of the program.

Marquette businessmen turned down a carnival company which wanted to take charge of the day's proceedings, and will conduct the celebration themselves. The program was a contest of public exercises in Dunlap square and the theaters.

At Trempealeau the village fathers have decreed to have a run by the fire department, aquatic and athletic events, a parade, and fireworks in the evening.

THREE DAY CELEBRATION
ON AT MONTMARA FESTO

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Tacoma, Wash., July 3.—Three days of celebration were entered into today by the citizens of Tacoma and the history of the United States from the landing of the Mayflower to the signing of the Declaration of Independence will be presented by 600 trained performers in the huge stadium. ## MANY REPORTED DEAD

Loss of Life Unknown But Dead and Ranier, the Nearest City.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Tacoma, Wash., July 3.—A Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul passenger train fell through a trestle near Ranier, south of this city, this morning. Many were reported killed.

Loss of Life Unknown.
All coaches except one of the train leaving Tacoma at 8:30 a. m. for Gray's Harbor fell through a trestle of the Northern Pacific tracks a half mile from Ranier about nine o'clock this morning, and fell on a freight train passing underneath. Dead and dying are being carried to Ranier.

Seattle Report.
Seattle, Wash., July 3.—Train No. 115 on the Gray's Harbor division of the Milwaukee railroad, which left Seattle for Tacoma at seven o'clock this morning, was wrecked near Ranier, several miles south of Tacoma. The general offices of the Milwaukee road are without details as to the extent of the accident. The train was composed of three cars.

Chicago, July 3.—Alfred Stead, son of the late journalist, W. T. Stead, apparently has been assassinated in Roumania, according to a somewhat confusing cablegram received here today by his brother-in-law, Frank R. Hussey, advertising manager of the Evening Post. The cablegram sent from Bucharest, July 1, was signed by Mr. Hussey's sister, Mrs. Mary Elaine Stead. It reads:

"Alfred assassinated; little hope; am going to Roumania."

The absence of punctuation marks in the cablegram made it impossible for Mr. Hussey to get its importance.

"My brother-in-law was in diplomatic service for many years," said Mr. Hussey. "He acted as British consul in England, but six months ago went to Roumania. His wife remained in England. I am inclined to believe that the cablegram meant that Alfred had been badly wounded by an assassin; there is little hope for his recovery and his wife is going to him."

Becker May Expose
Police Graft Aids

Lawyer Promises His Client Will
Name "Men Higher Up" Before Going to Electric Chair.

New York, July 3.—On the authority of Charles Becker's counsel, Martin T. Manton, it was said today that if Becker failed in his appeal to the United States court he will before going to the electric chair for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, make public a disclosure of the names of the men with whom he is alleged to have received $100,000 in graft money collected from gamblers and keepers of illegal resorts during his career as a head of the famous police-strong arm squad. Six men, some of them police department officials, are understood to be involved in the statement Becker has prepared while awaiting the outcome of his appeal to Governor Whitman and the United States supreme court.

UNITED STATES COURT DECIDES
IN FAVOR OF DEFENDANTS IN FEDERAL ACTION.

ACTION TO BUST TRUST

Government Sought to Dissolve What
Was Alleged to be a Combination of Dealers in the Coal Trade.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Philadelphia, July 3.—The United States district court today rendered a decision in favor of the defendants in the government suit to dissolve the Reading Company and to separate the New Jersey Central Railroad from the Reading.

Suit to Break Monopoly.
The suit of the government against the Reading Company and allied corporations was probably the most important step the department of Justice has taken in its attack upon what it contends is a monopoly of the anthracite coal trade. In 1907 the government filed a suit against all the coal companies, charging that a general illegal combination existed among them. This charge was not sustained by the supreme court, but the government won two other material points in that suit. It then decided to take action against many of the companies in separate suits. The case against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad and its affiliate coal company and that against the Lehigh Valley railroad and the coal company affiliated with it, are now before the federal courts.

The suit against the Reading was filed here in September 1913. The defendants are:

The Reading Company, a holding corporation;
The Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company;
The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company;

The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey;
The Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company;
The Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company;
Wilmington and Northern Railroad Company;
Lehigh and Hudson River Railway Company;
Lehigh and New England Railroad Company;

George F. Baker, Edward T. Stotesbury, Henry C. Black, Peter A. B. Widener, Daniel Willard, Henry P. McKean and Samuel Dickinson, directors of the Reading Company, who are also directors in one or more of the other companies named in the Reading; and Object of Lawsuit.

Generally stated the objects of the suit decided today were to dissolve what the government declared to be a combination of competitors, producers, shippers, sellers and carriers of anthracite held together, it was alleged, in violation of the federal anti-trust laws. The Reading Company, which has a capitalization of $275,000,000, to dissolve an alleged contributory combination between two of such competitive producers, shipper, carriers and carriers are the object of the suit.

The act to regulate commerce, which violation the government contended was committed by the defendants, was the domination of the alleged combination over the anthracite trade was maintained.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Petrograd, via London, July 3.—The official journal today published an imperial edict authorizing the Russian minister of finance to make two issues of treasury obligation of $250,000,000 each. The issue is to be in the shape of five per cent, short term bonds of income tax.

The issue will be in denominations of from fifty dollars upward. This low denomination is expected to give the loan popular appeal and to appeal to foreign as well as Russian investors. The issue is to run for six months, beginning today.

Six Year Old Youth
Wants to Be Bad Man

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boston, July 3.—Recently an Everett policeman captured a small boy of six years in the act of stealing a jar of milk from a door step. At the station house, a third degree inquisition resulted in the boy giving the names of four other lads who have been engaged in a series of misdeeds that have been causing Everett citizens considerable annoyance.

The oldest of the lot is four years and the youngest was the lad taken into custody. According to the young "desperado," each boy took cash to be real bandits. The boy arrested recited the following as the text of the pledge, "I will be bad, just as bad as I know how and I will read up detective stories and such things to find new ways of being bad and if one of us gets caught and sent away, the rest of us will keep on being bad until we are all caught and sent to the same place. Then we will all escape and be bad until we are caught again."

Spring Frosts Caused

Belgian Steamer and Several More
British Ships Are Latest Victims of German Submarine Warfare.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Petrograd, via London, July 3.—When the Russian naval squadron, in the Baltic, gave battle to five German cruisers and a flotilla of torpedo boats off the east coast of Gotland on July 2, one German cruiser was beat and the other warships put to flight, according to official statements issued today by the Russian admiralty under date of July 2. The damage to the Russian cruisers, the statement adds, was insignificant.

The text of the statement follows: "This morning, July 2, along the parallel of the Oestegarn light house, on the east coast of the island of Gotland, our cruisers encountered two of the enemy's light cruisers and some torpedo boats and engaged them in battle."

German Ship Lowers Flag.
"At ten o'clock in the morning a German cruiser, badly damaged, lowered her flag and ran ashore. The other cruiser and the torpedo boats fled."

"At ten o'clock our squadron encountered the armored cruiser Roon, one light cruiser and one torpedo boat and renewed the battle."

"At ten o'clock the enemy began to retire toward the south. During the retreat the enemy was joined by another light cruiser, and fled."

"At 1:30 o'clock the pursuit ceased. After the battle our squadron was unsuccessfully attacked by submarines. The damage to our cruisers was slight."

Turk Steamers Torpedoed.
The Russian navy has recovered in official statements issued by the admiralty today. The under sea boat sank two Turkish steamers and one sailing ship with cargoes of coal and provisions, and then exchanged shots with three armored cruisers off the mouth of the Bosphorus, driving them ashore."

London, July 3.—The Belgian steamship Redouena was torpedoed and sunk today by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Falmouth.

The Redouena was a steamer of 1,441 tons gross, and was built at Sunderland in 1903. She was 250 feet long, 38 feet beam and 17 feet deep. She was last reported at Falmouth, England, on June 21. The steamer was owned by an Antwerp shipping company.

Empty Life Boat and Another Boat marked "Craigaird, Leith," was towed into Penzance, England, today. It is suggested that the steamship Craigaird of 3,238 tons gross, which sailed from Galveston, Texas, and New York, June 11 for Havre, France, may have been the victim of a submarine, though there is no proof of this and nothing was heard regarding her crew.

Steamship Gadsby Sunk.
The British steamship Gadsby, 2397 tons, was sunk today by a German submarine. The crew was landed at Moville, Ireland. The Gadsby sailed from Sydney, C. B., June 18, for a European port.

EXPLOSION WRECKS
ROOM AT CAPITOL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, July 3.—Investigation was under way today to determine the cause of the explosion which wrecked the republican reception room in the senate side of the capitol late last night. While the exact cause of the blast could not be ascertained until after an expert inquiry had been conducted, it was generally believed to have been due to a bomb or infernal machine.

A fragment of chloride of silver dry cell, such as is used in explosive apparatus, was found in the ruins of the room about one hundred feet directly north of the window in the senate reception room where the explosion occurred. The fragment was picked up by a boy who took it to the office of Superintendent Woods.

Beat the Drum,
Mr. Retailer

What's the use of having a drum if you never beat it? In other words, what good are opportunities to you if you don't use them?

When the manufacturer advertises his brand in this newspaper he is tuning up a drum for retailers to beat.

They must do their part by showing these newspaper advertised goods.

Then the public read about the goods and see the goods at the same time.

Sales follow this sort of "drum beating."

This Evening and Monday Forenoon You still have time to prepare for a Glorious Fourth.

W. W. DALE TO LEAD BUSINESS EDUCATORS FOR ENSUING YEAR

Head of Janesville Business College Elected President of Association at Annual Convention.

Great honor was bestowed upon W. W. Dale, head of the Janesville Business College, Friday, when he was elected president of the Wisconsin Commercial Educators' Association at their annual convention held at Kenosha. The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic and largest that has ever been held and eight new schools were admitted into the association. Many more schools applied for admission but their qualifications were not up to the standard set by the organization.

The delegates were highly entertained, while at Kenosha one of the special features being a trip through the Jeffrey automobile plant.

A. F. Sheldon, the principal speaker of the convention, kindly extended an invitation to the delegates to visit his school of salesmanship at Area, Illinois. Here he showed the representatives from the different business schools how he worked out the principle and system which he advocates. The final session of the convention was held in the assembly hall of his institution. Mr. Sheldon has named the town in which his school is located Area. He took the first letter of the words ability, reliability, endurance and action, the four essentials for business, and made the name.

A plan is now on foot, which was originated and put forth in this meeting, to employ an advertising manager for the association, who would handle the advertising for each of the schools therein. Although paid through the association, each school would be advertised individually. The plan was discussed and a committee was appointed to consider it and report.

The other officers who were elected for the ensuing year were C. P. Moore of Racine, vice president; W. D. McDaniels of Oshkosh, secretary and treasurer; and F. Quinnell of Green Bay to fill the unexpired term left by O. E. Wood, deceased, on the inspection committee. E. M. Douglas was elected to fill the three year term on the committee. This committee makes it a point to visit each of the schools of the association and report any deficiency, either in work or in the cleanliness or sanitary conditions, and after fair warning if the school fails to make the correction they are asked for their membership papers.

Don't take a substitute! People who have been doctoring the family for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throats, Bronchitis, and all throat troubles with Allen's Cough Balsam for 50 years will tell you that no substitute will do the same work. What you want is to get rid of that cold and Allen's Cough Balsam will do it.

Work has been commenced on the overhauling of one of the stationary boilers in their boiler room. A new set of tubes will be installed and other extensive repairs will be made.

Frank F. Flaherty, Foreman Allen's chief clerk, leaves for Milwaukee today for a short visit.

Machinists Lee and Neave leave for Milwaukee today, where they will spend the week end.

John Sullivan, boiler washer, is visiting friends in Iowa and expects to be gone for about two weeks.

Boilermaker Godfrey returned yesterday from an extended trip through the east.

The rails are confident of the game this afternoon against the Parker Pen companies. Battery for the railroad are Fleming and Lee.

Fireman Ray Dawes has gone to his home in Adel, Iowa, to spend the Fourth with his family.

The merchants of the city have made it possible for the Ladies' Auxiliary to offer prizes for the races and different contests at the Trainsmen's picnic Monday. The ladies have ascertained as many of the merchants as possible and all have liberally donated. Among the other sports to be enjoyed by the younger set will be a duck race. The boys will get in the water and each will race his duck.

Don't Visit the California Expositions.

Without a supply of Allen's Foot-Ease, the unspeakable odor to be shaken into the Standard remedy for foot trouble. It gives instant relief to tired, aching feet and prevents swollen, hot feet. One lady writes: "I enjoyed every minute of my stay at the Exposition. Thanks to Allen's Foot-Ease in my shoes." Get it TODAY.

It is not often that in any one family a group picture of five generations can be taken. A great-grandmother, great-grandmother, grandmother, mother, and infant daughter, all on the distaff side of the family. This is true in the family of Mrs. A. V. Lyle of Janesville, and the above picture represents the five generations of her family starting with her daughter, Corabel Lyle, born in Janesville, February 3rd, 1913, and completed by the picture of the baby's great-grandmother, Mrs. Evaline Wingate, born in Haverstraw, Conn., May 4th, 1835. The picture starts at the right side and reads to left as follows: Mrs. Evaline Wingate, born in Haverstraw, Conn., May 4th, 1835; Mrs. Mary Roddis, born in Mexico, N. Y., Sept. 1859; Mrs. Cora Belle Dodge, born in Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 20th, 1875; Mrs. A. V. Lyle, born in Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 25th, 1893; Corabel Lyle, born in Janesville, Wis., Feb. 3rd, 1913.

WILL TEST CITY'S CANINE ORDINANCE

Attorneys Fred Burpee and W. H. Dougherty to Thresh Out Legality of Dog Ordinance.

Within a week's time the question "serious" to the public of Janesville about the city ordinance licensing and taxing the keeping of dogs within the city limits, will be threshed out in the municipal court between City Attorney W. H. Dougherty and F. Burpee. Yesterday the attorneys got together and agreed to file stipulated facts to the court in briefs whereby the time and expense of taking testimony as in a court trial, can be eliminated. When Attorney Burpee appeared before the court in defense of George McLean, who was charged with violating the ordinance in not obtaining the license, the case was adjourned until the city attorney until these briefs could be filed. It is understood that the defendants claim that the Janesville city ordinance is invalid in that no license can be charged for the keeping of dogs that do not run at large, and this claim will be argued in court.

The police department has interpreted the ordinance that every dog should be licensed, and have acted accordingly. George McLean and it was applied for a kennel license and it was brought before the city commission to amend the ordinance to contain the provision allowing for a ten dollar kennel tax. Until the amendment is put through the council no kennel tax will be levied and the city will therefore the offer of McLean to purchase a ten dollar license was refused. It was said that the defendant in the city case will refuse to purchase a separate tax for each dog in the kennel for the cost would be of a very material amount.

Up until noon today there were 492 tags sold and the issue of further collections is clearly at stake. The collection of the McLean case as dog owners are holding off until it is settled. In case it is found that the ordinance is invalid the city will be forced to refund the entire amount of the license money. City Attorney Dougherty expressed a confidence that the measure would stand the test in court and declared that the ordinance file force here was exactly the duplicate of the ordinance enforced in Green Bay. Sections in the statute provide for the licensing and regulating of dogs by cities and these were adopted in the ordinance.

HOLIDAY EVENTS AT COUNTRY CLUB

Tombstone Match Arranged for Golfers—Ladies Will Play Military Bridge—Dance During Evening

Monday, the fourth of July holiday, will be a gala day at the Sunnyside Golf Club. Special events have been arranged by committees in charge for both gentlemen and lady members.

Starting early in the afternoon the men will compete in a handicap tournament match. Suitable prizes have been placed to be awarded the winner and if the tournament Monday compares with that which featured a similar event a year ago, a big time is expected. Last year the course was crowded and a number of excellent games were recorded, competition being extremely keen.

While the men are competing on the links, the ladies will enjoy themselves at the clubhouse. Considerable interest is being manifested in the military bridge game, which is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock. Four prizes will be awarded, an unusual number for such play. Members of the committee in charge of affairs for the afternoon announced that they have arranged for automobiles to carry members to the clubhouse during the afternoon.

The committee has prepared a patriotic decorative effect for the spa, with bunting and American flags and red, white and blue bunting will be quite conspicuous.

An innovation will be the opening of the evening's dancing previous to the supper hour, at 6 o'clock. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock. Dinner in the past members are expected to make early reservations.

The program will include a violin concert given by Miss Miltch, formerly of the Apollo Theatre orchestra. The music for the dancing numbers will be rendered by an orchestra of three pieces.

NEW PITCHER WILL HURL HERE SUNDAY

Chicago Slab Artist Named McCord will Do the Slabbing Against Fast Milwaukee Nine Sunday

Baseball fans of the city will see a new pitcher, by name McCord, of Chicago, against the Milwaukee Sunday afternoon, when the White Sox will clash with the Cream City nine at the stadium park. Batters will twirl for the Pantorium team in the Madison square Monday against the Olympians and Manager Caldwell has made haste to secure the Chicago finger to replace him. McCord was recommended as being a crack pitcher, being right handed with a reputation in the big city as being "big league timber." It is so, he will have worlds of opportunity of showing his alleged slugging ability against the Milwaukee nine.

It will do the receiving and a new player will be at first. Joe Ryan, former Cardinals shortstop and third baseman, may be switched over to the initial sack, but don't bet on it. A baseman from a "burr" down in Indiana will be holding down the job. Cornell will be at second with Crook at short and Miller in his usual place at third. All the infield members of the Cardinals give promise that they have kicked all the boisterous fever sustained in last Sunday's game with the Rockford Maroons out of their system and are ready for real ball tomorrow. The outfield will be made up of Ryan, Norrissey, Chamberlain, Berger and Vehr. The Cardinals are pulling the ropes strong for a victory to wipe up their inglorious defeat of last Sunday.

MORRIS MILLER

Two major league clubs claim Sisler, the Michigan pitcher. Why is it that the college men are the ones who get mixed up and show up with two or three contracts signed?

Every league has its boneheads. The Feds' cast of characters includes one. Grover Gilmore. Last year, with Kansas City, he made a spectacular and thrilling steal with the bases full. Now he's pulled another. In a recent game he raced over the foul line and after a hard run pulled down the long home run, permitting the winning run to score from third.

The Federals—the boys who came from the horrible clutches of bondage—are falling in line with O. B. in releasing players with iron-clad contracts who aren't delivering the goods. Hugh Bradley and Eddie Collins have been released by Pittsburgh. Their contracts were to run to the close of the year. Now they have been invited to fight.

It would be an awful blow to the Feds should the Chicago White Sox and Cubs win the pennants in their respective leagues and bring the world series to Chicago, which is considered the Feds' stronghold. The Cubs already have what seems a comfortable lead, and are playing consistent ball, while the Sox are out in front, and if they get the breaks, could have been released by Pittsburgh. Their contracts were to run to the close of the year. Now they have been invited to fight.

There seems to be no way to stop the consistent advance of the White Sox. The Rowland team continues to play good ball and get the breaks and the value of Eddie Collins is becoming more apparent with every game. The brilliant second baseman is gradually getting to play better ball than ever before in his career, and if the team manages to win the pennant it will be Collins who will deserve most of the credit.

GIRL AS BASEBALL PROMOTER

WINS FAME IN ST. PAUL.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

St. Paul, Minn., July 3.—Gladys Carpenter, pretty St. Paul girl, today looked upon as the only girl in the Northwest, giving the whole of her attention, to the promotion of baseball. She is working hard as assistant secretary of the St. Paul division of the National Amateur Baseball association, there being at present five leagues, with 700 players here. Her interest in the work is accentuated by her interest in the kids, she says. She emphasizes "young boys."

Connie Mack has played a whole baseball team at third base so far this season in an effort to find a successor to Frank Baker. Catcher Schang is the latest to play the bag and he makes the ninth man Mack has tried. And the end is not yet. Number ten was to have been Habbington, of Fordham, but the Giants gobbled him up.

Queer how Carl Weiland can almost beat the Tigers by merely tossing his glove into the box and cannot even finish a game against Cleveland. In the last three seasons, he has downed Detroit fifteen times, beating that team six times this year. Yet against Cleveland, he is the unluckiest pitcher in the league. If he pitches great ball, he gets no support from his teammates with the bat. Ordinarily, however, he is driven from the box.

CUBS BEAT PITTSBURGH IN HARD COMBAT 2 TO 1

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, July 3.—Vic Sahr stepped into the batters' box in the ninth inning and won a tight pitchers' duel from the Pittsburgh Pirates by the score of 2 to 1 with a timely single yesterday afternoon. "Vic" called upon to do the pitching for the Cubs did a masterly job of it and allowed the swarming Pirates just three safe looks, and the Pirates' only run was a gift by a boot made by the great Zimmerman. Zimmerman had a bad day of it, for he slipped on a couple in the field and did not get a hit during the pastime. Harmon proved too foxy enough to keep the Cub star waiting for two minutes before each pitch, and Zimmerman missed at bad balls. With the score one all, it looked like a tie game at the ninth. Good, after fouling two, bunted, and his daring tactics resulted in a base hit. Fischer sacrificed and Schulte walked. Zim struck out and Sahr singled, sending the winning run across. The Cubs are now two full games to the front.

Sox Are Clawed.

Detroit, July 2.—Monsieur Jean Dubuc slow-balled the Tigers to a 2 to 1 victory over the White Sox yesterday, beating Red Faber, who worked in one of his steady mound exhibitions, losing on five hits, one of which was a homer, and a double which, linked with a sacrifice and a single proved the undoing of the rampant Sox. Sam Crawford was the author of the fourly wallop and Donnie Bush put across the deciding score with a double in the eighth.

Barry Goes to Boston.

Boston, July 2.—Dissemination of the Athletics at one time the greatest baseball machine in the world, is about completed, for Jack Barry, shortstop and one of the main cogs in the mill, has been traded to the Sox. The price is reported to be eight thousand dollars, and Barry will play at second today against his old teammates. Pls. Baseman Melvin and Catcher Schang are also said to be on the market, it being the intention of Manager Mack to build up another team.

O'Toole Again.

Columbus, O., July 3.—The first no-hit game Marty O'Toole, who was a failure in the big league, came yesterday afternoon, when Columbus beat

100 MILE AUTO RACE 25 MILE MOTORCYCLE RACE MONDAY, JULY 5th JANESVILLE DRIVING PARK Races Start 2:15 Admission 75c. Children 25c. All Vehicles Free.

THOUSANDS IN TACOMA FOR GREAT AUTO CLASSIC.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Tacoma, Wash., July 3.—Thousands of enthusiasts were here today to attend the automobile races to be held on the Tacoma Speedway July 4 and 5, in which some of the fastest drivers in the world will participate. Among the most noted pilots are Barney Oldfield, who will drive a Peugeot, Bob Burman, in a Peugeot, Eddie Pullen in a Mercer and Earl Cooper in a Stutz. The principal race will be the 250 mile Montanara free for all tomorrow. Besides cash prizes of $5,500, a perpetual challenge trophy will be contested for. Monday the Inter-city Century, 100 miles and the Golden Pottatch trophy, race, 250 miles, will be run. The Tacoma Speedway is a planted track 50 feet wide and two miles in length. It was freely predicted that the winners in the three races would have to make close to 100 miles an hour.

Bad Teeth Make Bad Boys

The president of the New York juvenile association asserts that 91 per cent of the delinquent boys that come to the association to be looked after have bad teeth from which they suffer and that instead of worrying about their morals the association worries about their teeth with the result that after two years of competent dentistry and daily use of the tooth brush 90 per cent of the boys are returned out as reformed.

REACH COMPROMISE IN RE-ASSESSMENT OF SUGAR COMPANY

TOWN OF LA PRAIRIE ACCEPTS VALUATION FOR ASSESSMENT FOR 1915, AT $80,000.

LITIGATION DISMISSED

Board of Review of La Prairie Held Hearing Friday, When Matter Was Satisfactorily Adjusted.

The valuation for assessment purposes of the Rock County Sugar Company for the year 1915 has been fixed at $80,000. This compromise was reached Friday afternoon at a meeting of the Board of Review of the town of La Prairie, after testimony was heard from the company's witnesses, State Tax Commissioner Thomas E. Lyons, and attorneys, O. Moutat for the company, and S. Nolan for the town, in conference reached a satisfactory agreement. The valuation for the year 1914, which ended May first, 1914, was fixed at $100,000.

For the past two years the property of the plant, including the land and buildings, has been assessed at $204,000, the company claiming the rate was too much by $150,000. In its testimony, representatives of the company placed their estimates of the valuation as low as $35,000. To adjust matters to the satisfaction of both parties concerned, the Board of Review, consisting of R. K. Overton, chairman, William McCone, S. S. Thomas, supervisors, and W. E. Gleason, clerk, all of La Prairie, met Friday afternoon at a hearing, to bring about some decision. Present at the hearing were Thomas E. Lyons, of Madison, state tax commissioner; J. S. Lawson of Madison, representing the Wisconsin Sugar Company; James E. Davidson, of City, Michigan, treasurer of the Rock County Sugar Company; F. A. Taylor, Rock County income tax assessor, and Messrs. Girard and Keon, engineers connected with the state tax commission.

Both J. S. Lawson and James Davidson stated that they believed firmly that the property was not worth fifty thousand dollars. J. O. Howe, of the Rock River Cotton Company, was called as a witness, and he went on to state that personally, he was worth twenty thousand dollars, although he was inclined to believe that Lawson and Davidson were probably right in their estimate. It was finally agreed that all litigation be dismissed, each party paying its own costs. Commissioner Lyons said that the settlement was reached and all matters adjusted, that the town made a good settlement with the Sugar plant.

The Rock County Sugar company was closed down in January of 1914, owing to the change in the tariff brought about by the democratic administration under President Wilson. Stockholders of the company are firm in their belief that the tariff will again until this tariff is again changed to warrant any profits. If the tariff is not changed, the stockholders declare they will go out of business entirely.

OPEN PLAYGROUNDS TO PUBLIC MONDAY

Since Janesville Will Not Celebrate Holiday, Playgrounds Will Be Utilized By All Who Wish.

Because of the fact that Janesville will not celebrate the Fourth of July this year, Walter Cox, director of the city playgrounds, has decided to have the playgrounds open to the public on Monday. This was decided upon so that all the children of the city could have a day of recreation and especially the older people could be attracted to the playgrounds. The lack of celebration in this vicinity will undoubtedly keep many people away, thus giving the playgrounds a chance to make use of the apparatus and costs.

Beginning Tuesday, the playgrounds will be open during the evening for the use of the people who are unable to be present during the day. Efforts are being made to place tennis courts at the Adams school ground because of the increased demand for tennis courts. The playgrounds are well equipped, the Washington having three courts, the Jefferson two and the Webster one. All the courts are in constant use and from the present tennis season will be the most popular sport this summer.

The condition of the water in the river has made it necessary for the postponement of the swimming classes for another week. The water is filled with silt and bits of debris which make swimming impossible. As soon as it clears, the classes will be started.

Director Cox is drafting for the baseball league, composed of teams from Janesville, Watertown, and Wausau. The league will be organized by the end of the year to give the teams a better chance. The girls are also enthusiastic to have their series of games start at the summer. The series will be started on Monday, July 5th, and will continue until the end of the season.

COMMERCIAL CLUB'S BIG LIGHT PETITION PRESENTED TO MAYOR

MR. FATHERS RECEIVES LISTS CALLING FOR NEW ILLUMINATION SYSTEM THROUGHOUT ENTIRE CITY.

SIGNERS TOTAL 1,858

Commission Expected to Act Within Short Time On Matter—Old Light Contract Expires Soon.

Honorable James A. Fathers, Mayor of Janesville, Wis., received today a petition signed by 1,858 citizens and voters of the city of Janesville, requesting the city to consider the installation of a new system of lighting for the city.

The petition is presented to you with the recommendation of the city of Janesville, that arrangements be made for the installation of the new system as soon as possible.

Constitutional rights will receive favorable consideration at your hands, I remain, Respectfully Yours, W. J. McDOWELL, General Secretary.

A petition containing nearly two thousand names of voters and citizens of the city of Janesville, praying for the installation of a modern and up-to-date illumination system for the entire city, was yesterday presented to Mayor James A. Fathers by W. J. McDowell, general secretary of the Janesville Commercial club.

It is expected that the city commission will take early consideration of the matter.

With the placing of the petition in the hands of the city fathers, a campaign which has been waged unceasingly for the past seven months by a special committee appointed for the purpose by the Commercial club, ended. What the results of the untiring work of Chairman Edward Anderson and his associated committee workers will be, the commission will decide.

Originally planning only the inauguration of a modern system of illumination, the commission has been forced to consider the proposition of a new system of lighting for the city.

The result was tremendous. Within less than four months, more than 1,800 names of citizens have been secured for the petition, and the city fathers are now faced with the task of deciding whether to accept the proposition or not.

The proposition of the idea of extending the system to the wards was the real cause of so many names being recorded. While the residents of the city are particularly well lighted for diverse economic conditions to be regarded in a city this size, the plans for still better lighting throughout appeared to be a very reasonable proposition.

Expectations are that the city commission will act on the petition on an early date, due to the fact that the city of Janesville is now faced with the problem of illumination power expires on July 25. Either some new contract will have to be entered into between the city and the power company or the old contract must be renewed.

Just what system will be installed, providing the commission decides to accept the proposition, must be determined by the commission. During the early stages of the campaign, and when it was deemed advisable, the city fathers have been urged to accept the proposition, and the city fathers are now faced with the task of deciding whether to accept the proposition or not.

The plan is to be followed insofar as the system is installed down to the street level, the main reasons for furthering the plan is to bring about the elimination of the unsightly poles from the business streets, to give the city a more modern appearance.

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

(Published Saturdays.)

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—I had the motor in my car overhauled recently, and since that time it runs well at a slow rate of speed, but when I go faster than twenty miles an hour it misses. I have four coils with buzzers, no magneto. What do you think is wrong? T. F.

If you are sure that the carburetor is adjusted properly for high speed would suggest that you clean out the timer so that the roller will make a clean contact with the segments or contact pieces. If they are dirty the roller at the end of the timer shaft will not make a good electrical connection when going very fast. A little oil in the timer is good.

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—I understand that it is absolutely necessary to determine which is the positive and which the negative wire in order to connect them properly to the starting or lighting generator. Some batteries have a minus mark for the negative and a plus mark denoting the positive wire, but mine are not so marked. How can I tell which is which? B. F.

A simple way to determine the poles of a battery is to immerse the wires leading from the battery or other source in a glass of salt water. Shortly bubbles will form on the negative side. Although some batteries are identified as you mention, others have their positive painted red and the negative black.

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—Please tell me what the difference is between a high tension distributor and a timer.—C. R.

The high tension distributor takes care of and distributes the high tension or secondary current to the various cylinders at timed intervals. The timer simply interrupts at timed intervals the primary current. The primary current is obtained from a generator or storage battery, and this is stepped up to a high voltage current by means of the induction coil. The timer and distributor is necessary in order to have the spark delivered to the respective cylinders in the proper firing order at the right time.

Motorist Department, The Gazette.—I have a Ford car and for some time it has what is called a "knock" and I am unable to find it. All bearings are newly tightened up. I have a Bosch magneto and this knock does not sound so clear or loud when the magneto is retarded, but it is not enough to speak of the engine is a good puller and runs fine with this fault, which does not sound very nice. Can you give me some advice?—S. H.

A knock usually arises from the ignition occurring too early, pre-ignition or a loose bearing. Although you have had the bearings tightened up (it being assumed that you refer to the main and connecting rod bearings) the knock may occur at a wrist pin bearing. Make sure that the spark does not occur before the center when retarded. If the knock occurs in any particular cylinder, it may be located by shorting the spark from top of spark plug to metal of engine by means of a screw driver. If on doing so the sound decreases you may look for the trouble in that cylinder.

BUILDERS' INSURANCE COMPANY ORGANIZED

Emil Pautz of Janesville is a Director in Concern Just Licensed by Clearing.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., July 2.—Insurance Commissioner M. J. Cleary yesterday issued a license to the Builders' Limited Mutual Liability Insurance Company of Wisconsin, with home offices in this city. The company is composed of contractors engaged in the various building operations. The Wisconsin Association of Master Builders planned and organized the company. Joseph Tyrrell, Madison, is president of both the state association and the insurance company. Over 200 policies were issued by the Madison office yesterday.

The directors of the new company are: Joseph Tyrrell and George Chare, Madison; M. G. Winter, M. C. Peters and H. C. Keil, Milwaukee; Evert Schmidt, Waupun; John Schatz, Watertown; Emil Pautz, Janesville; M. C. Merz, Oshkosh; J. L. Leonhart, Appleton; and W. H. Quinn, Beloit. The officers are: Joseph Tyrrell, Madison, president; M. G. Winter, Milwaukee, vice-president; Harry L. Colesier, Madison, secretary; George Chare, Madison, treasurer. The preliminary work was largely in the hands of Joseph Tyrrell, George Chare and Harry Geisler, Madison, and M. G. Winter and C. H. Elbert, Milwaukee. The latter is secretary of the State Contractors' association.

The department has also licensed the Merchants' Life & Casualty Company of Minneapolis, health and accident insurance, with capital of $100,000 and admitted assets of $192,000.

The Penn Mutual Life of Philadelphia is inquiring of Commissioner Cleary relative to the redemption of that company to Wisconsin under the new law which removes some of the restrictions which prompted a number of companies to withdraw from the state in 1907.

The Mutual Life of New York, the first eastern company to return under this law, has made its first appointments of agents in the state, the number including W. W. Knussel, John H. McKeen and Bruce Whitney, Milwaukee; Oswald A. Thomas, Watertown; Dewart I. German, Chicago, Ill.; and George G. Strathern, Madison.

FOUR OPERAS NOW COMBINE IN ONE.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, July 2.—Four Gilbert and Sullivan operas boiled down into 45 minutes—that's the latest vaudeville novelty here at the Palace theatre.

The act called the "Gilbert and Sullivan Review" with a cast of sixty people, a massive setting which represents historic H. M. S. Pinafore as a modern dreadnaught.

The entire action takes place on the deck of the Pinafore, which first appears in Japanese waters, where the Mikado and his suite comes aboard. Later a change of scene reveals the ship off Cornwall's coast, with the Pirates of Penzance imprisoned aboard her. The fourth opera included is "The Gondoliers" from which the "cachuca" dance and the song "Sparkling Eyes" are given.

DRIVERS PRACTICE ON TRACK FOR SPEED RACE ON MONDAY

Speed Machines Show Fast Pace in Practice Trials Over Mile Track. This Afternoon.

With ten cars entered in Janesville's first hundred mile auto race, which will be run Monday afternoon at the Association Park, piloted by skillful drivers of repute, the Janesville public will witness a speed contest in which the records of this district will undoubtedly be broken. Practically everything is in readiness for the race and the drivers started huddling up their mounts over the track this afternoon, developing great speed over the track which all pronounced the best for a mile dirt course that they have ever driven on. Care was used by all the pilots in their practice turns in making the turns, for they demand expert skill.

The official checkers of the cars in their laps with their time will be Ralph Sullivan, Fred Palmer and Harry Siegel of this city. Frank Hass will act as chief starter and flagman and two men, Byron Codman and William Scott, will have charge of the flagging at the turns. The yellow flag denotes, in all races, that the track ahead is clear, the red, danger and the green is flashed on the driver who has but one more lap to go to complete the race. The checkered flag is used to signal the driver completing the last lap. The judges will be named this afternoon.

The cards, numbers and drivers announced by the race officials are as follows: No. 1, Buick, driver A. P. Kelley; No. 2, Marlon or Stutz, driver E. Bemis; No. 3, Marmon, H. Miller; No. 4, Mercer, A. Hausman; No. 5, Duxford, special, R. Adams; No. 6, Jackson, W. Sharpe; No. 7, Marlon, R.

Hergstrom, No. 8, Buick, Herman; No. 9, Cutting, unnamed; No. 10, Buick, McCummins.

After that, there was all the better reason why he should grapple with himself in the fallow interval; and for two complete days he was lost, even to the small world of the summer resort, tramping for hours in the lake shore forests or drifting about in one of the hotel skiffs, and returning to the inn only to eat and sleep when hunger or weariness constrained him. On the whole, the discipline was good. He flattered himself that the sense of proportion was returning slowly, and with it some finer impulses. Truly, it had been his misfortune to be obliged to compromise with evil to some extent, and to involve others, but was not that rather due to the ineradicable faults of an imperfect social system than to any basic defect in his own theories? And was not the same imperfect social system partly responsible for the quasi-criminal attitude which had been forced upon him? He was willing to believe it; willing, also, to believe that he could rise above the constraining forces and be the man he wished to be. That he could so rise was proved, he decided, on the morning of the third day, when he chanced to overhear the hotel clerk telling the man whose room was across the corridor from his own that Andrew Galbraith still had a fighting chance for life. In the pleasant glow of the high resolve the news awakened none of the murderous promptings, but rather the generous hope that it might be true.

It was late in the afternoon of this third day, upon his return from a long pull in the borrowed skiff around the group of islands in the upper and unfrequented part of the lake, that he found a note awaiting him. It was from Miss Farnham, and its brevity, no less than its urgency, stirred him apprehensively, bringing a suggestive return of the furtive fierceness which he promptly fought down. "I must see you before eight o'clock this evening. It is of the last importance," was the wording of the note; and the heavy underscoring of the "last," and a certain tremulous characteristic in the handwriting, stressed the urgency.

Definitely the Man Catcher Worked Them Open.

event he could choose his own time for an evening call. It nettled him angrily to find that the premonition of coming disaster was still with him when he crossed the courthouse square and came into the main street a few doors from the Winnabago entrance. Attacking from a fresh vantage ground it was warning him that the town hotel was the stopping place of the man Broffin, and that he was taking an unnecessary hazard in passing it. Brushing the warning aside, he went on defiantly, and just before he came within identifying range of the loungers on the hotel porch an omnibus backed to the curb to deliver its complement of passengers from the lately met northbound train.

Griswold walked on until he was stopped by the sidewalk-blocking group of freshly arrived travelers pausing to identify their luggage as it was handed down from the top of the omnibus. Alertly watchful, he quickly recognized Broffin among the porch loungers, and saw him leave his tilted chair to saunter toward the steps. Then the fateful thing happened. One of the luggage sorters, a clean-limbed, handsome young fellow with boyish eyes and a good-natured grin, wheeled suddenly and gripped him.

"Why, Griswold, old man—well, I'll be dogged! Who on the face of the earth would ever have thought of finding you here? So this is where you came up after the long deep, McIntyre dive, is it?" Then to one of his fellow travelers: "Hold on a minute, Johnson! I want you to shake hands with an old newspaper pal of mine from New York, Mr. Kenneth Griswold, Kenneth, this is Mr. Beverly Johnson, of the Bayou State Security bank in New Orleans."

Thus Bainbridge, sometime star reporter for the Louisianaian, turning up at the climactic instant to prove the crowded condition of an overnarrow world, much as Matthew Broffin had once turned up on the after-deck of the coastwise steamer Adelantado to prove it to him.

While Griswold, with every nerve on edge, was acknowledging the introduction which he could by no means avoid, Broffin drew nearer. From the porch steps he could both see and hear. Bainbridge, cheerfully loquacious, continued to do most of the talking. He was telling Griswold of the streak of good luck which had snatched him out of a reporter's berth in the South to make him night editor of one of the St. Paul dailies. Johnson was merely an onlooker. Broffin's eyes searched the teller's face. Thus far it was a blank—a rather bored blank.

"And you are on your way to St. Paul now?" Griswold said to the newspaper man. Broffin, whose ears were skilfully attuned to all the tone variations in the voice of evasion, thought he detected a quaver of anxious impatience in the half-absent query.

"Yes; I was going on through tonight, but Johnson, here, stumped me to stop over. He said I might be able to get a news story out of his sick president." Bainbridge rattled on. "Ever meet Mr. Galbraith? He is the bank president who was held up last spring, you remember; fine old Scotch gentleman of the Walter-Scott brand."

"When did you leave New Orleans?" Griswold asked; and now Broffin made sure he distinguished the note of anxiety.

"Two days back; missed a connection on account of high water in the Ohio. Might have stayed another 12 hours in the good old levee town if we'd only known, eh, Johnson?" And then again to Griswold: "Remember that supper we had at Chaudiere's, the night I was leaving for the banana coast? By George! come to think of it, I believe that was the last time we foregathered in the—Say, Kenneth, what have you done with your beard?"

Something clicked in Broffin's brain. The final doubt was cleared away. Griswold was the man he had seen and marked when the two were saying good-by on the banquet in front of Chaudiere's.

Broffin's right hand went swiftly to an inside pocket of his coat and when it was withdrawn a pair of handcuffs, oiled to noiselessness, came with it. Deftly the man-catcher worked them open, using only the fingers of one hand, and never taking his eyes from the trio on the sidewalk. One last step remained; if he could only manage to get speech with Johnson first—

During the trying interval Griswold had been fully alive to his peril. He had seen the swift hand-passing, and he knew what it was the Broffin was concealing in the hand which had made the quick pocket dive. He knew that the crucial moment had come; and, as many times before, the savage fear-mania was gripping him. In the cold vise-grip of it he had become once more the cornered wild beast.

It was Johnson who broke the spell. While Bainbridge was insisting that Griswold should come in and make a social third at the hotel dinner table, the teller picked up his hand-bag and mounted the steps. Griswold's brain fell into halves. With one of them he was making excuses to the newspaper man; with the other he saw Broffin stop Johnson and draw him aside.

What the detective was saying was only too plainly evident. Johnson wheeled short to face the sidewalk group, and Griswold could feel in every fiber of him the searching scrutiny to which he was being subjected. When he stole a glance at the pair on the porch, Johnson was shaking his head slowly; and he did it again after a second thoughtful stare. Griswold, missing completely now what Bainbridge was saying, overheard the teller's low-toned rejoinder to the detective's urgings: "It's no use, Mr. Broffin; I'd have to swear positively to it, you know, and I couldn't do that."

No, I don't want to hear your corroborative evidence; it might make me see a resemblance where there is none. Wait until Mr. Galbraith recovers; he's your man."

Griswold hardly knew how he made shift to get away from Bainbridge finally; but when it was done, and he was crossing the little triangular park which filled the angle between the business squares and the lake-fronting residence streets, he was sweating profusely, and the departing fear-mania was leaving him weak and tremulous.

Passing the stone-basined fountain in the middle of the park he stopped, jerked the pistol from his pocket, spilled the cartridges from its magazine, and stooped to grope for a loose stone in the walk-border. With the fountain base for an anvil and the loosened border stone for a hammer he beat the weapon into shapeless inutilty and flung it away.

"God knows whom I shall be tempted to kill, next!" he groaned; and the trembling fit was still unnerving him when he went on to keep the appointment made by Charlotte Farnham.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Dust and Ashes.

A full moon, blood-red from the smoke of forest fires far to the eastward, was rising over the Wahaska hills when Griswold unlatched the gate of the Farnham inclosure and passed quickly up the walk.

Since the summoning note had stressed the urgencies, he was not surprised to find the writer of it awaiting his coming on the vine-shadowed porch. In his welcoming there was a curious mingling of constraint and impatience, and he was moved to marvel. Miss Farnham's outlook upon life, the point of view of the ideally well balanced, was uniformly poised and self-contained, and he was wondering if some fresh entanglement were threatening when she motioned him to a seat and placed her own chair so that the light from the sitting-room windows would leave her in the shadow.

"You had my note?" she began. "Yes, it came while I was away from the hotel, and the regular trip of the inn brake was the first conveyance I could catch. Am I late?"

Her reply was qualified. "That remains to be seen."

There was a hesitant pause, and then she went on: "Do you know why I sent for you to come?"

"No, not definitely."

"I was hoping you would know; it would make it easier for me. You owe me something, Mr. Griswold."

"I owe you a great deal," he admitted, warmly. "It is hardly putting it too strong to say that you have made some part of my work possible which would otherwise have been impossible."

"I didn't mean that," she dissented, with a touch of cool scorn. "I have no especial ambition to figure as a character, however admirable, in a book. Your obligation doesn't lie in the literary field; it is real—and personal. You have done me a great injustice, and it seems to have been carefully premeditated."

The blow was so sudden and so calmly driven home that Griswold gasped.

thought of the embarrassments and difficulties in which it might involve me."

Truly, the heavens had fallen and the solid earth was reeling! Griswold lay back in the deep lounging chair and fought, manfully to retain some little hold upon the anchorings. Could this be his ideal; the woman whom he had set so high above all others in the scale of heroic faultlessness and sublime devotion to principle? And she was so much a slave of the conventional as to be able to tell him coldly that she had recognized him again, and that her chief concern was the embarrassment it was causing her? Before he could gather the words for any adequate rejoinder, she was going on pointedly:

"You have done everything you could to make the involvement complete. You have made friends of my friends, and you came here as a friend of my father. You have drawn Edward Raymer into the entanglement and helped him with the stolen money. In every way you have sought to make it more and more impossible for me to give information against you—and you have succeeded. I can't do it now, without facing a scandal that would never die in a small place like this, and without bringing trouble and ruin upon a family of our nearest friends. And that is why I sent for you today; and why I say you owe me something."

Griswold was sitting up again, and he had recovered some small measure of self-possession.

"I certainly owe you many apologies, at least," he said, ironically. "I have really been doing you a great injustice. Miss Farnham—a very grave injustice, though not exactly of the kind you mention. I think I have been misapprehending you from the beginning. How long have you known me as the man who is wanted in New Orleans?"

"A long time; though I tried not to believe it at first. It seemed incredible that the man I had spoken to on the Belle Julie would come here and put me in such a false position."

"Good heavens!" he broke out; "is your position all you have been thinking of? Is that the only reason why you haven't set the dogs on me?"

"It is the chief reason why I couldn't afford to do anything more than I have done. Goodness knows, I have tried in every way to warn you, even to pointing out the man who is shadowing you. To do it, I have had to deceive my father. I have been hoping that you would understand and go away."

Patriotic Address of George Washington, Delivered In Year 1798

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: The period for a new election of a citizen, to administer the executive government of the United States, being not far distant, and the time actually arrived when your thoughts must be employed in designating the person who is to be clothed with that important trust, it appears to me proper, especially as it may conduce to a more distinct expression of the public voice, that I should now apprise you of the resolution I have formed, to decline being considered among the number of those out of whom a choice is to be made.

I beg you, at the same time, to do me the justice to be assured, that this resolution has not been taken without a strict regard to all the considerations appertaining to the relation which binds a dutiful citizen to his country; and that, in withdrawing the tender of service, which silence in my situation might imply, I am influenced by no diminution of zeal for your future interest; no deficiency of grateful respect for your past kindness; but am supported by a full conviction that the step is compatible with both.

The acceptance of, and continuance hitherto in, the office to which your suffrages have twice called me, have been a uniform sacrifice of inclination to the opinion of duty, and to a deference for what appeared to be your desire. I constantly hoped that it would have been much earlier in my power, consistently with motives which I was not at liberty to disregard, to return to that retirement from which I had been reluctantly drawn.

In looking forward to the moment which is intended to terminate the career of my public life, my feelings do not permit me to suspend the deep acknowledgment of that debt of gratitude which I owe to my beloved country for the many honors it has conferred upon me; still more for the steadfast confidence with which it has supported me; and for the opportunities I have thence enjoyed of manifesting my inviolable attachment by services faithful and persevering, though in usefulness unequal to my zeal.

If benefits have resulted to our country from these services, let it always be remembered to your praise, and as an instructive example in our annals, that under circumstances in which the passions, agitated in every direction, were liable to mislead, amidst appearances sometimes dubious, vicissitudes of fortune often discouraging, in situations in which not unfrequently want of success has countenanced the spirit of criticism, the constancy of your support was the essential prop of the efforts, and a guaranty of the plans by which they were effected.

Profoundly penetrated with this idea, I shall carry it with me to my grave, as a strong incitement to unceasing vows that Heaven may continue to you the choicest tokens of its beneficence; that your union and brotherly affection may be perpetual; that the free constitution, which is the work of your hands, may be sacredly maintained; that its administration in every department may be stamped with wisdom and virtue; that, in fine, the happiness of the people of these States, under the auspices of liberty, may be made complete, by so careful a preservation and so prudent a use of this blessing, as will acquire to them the glory of recommending it to the applause, the affection, and adoption of every nation which is yet a stranger to it.

Here, perhaps, I ought to stop. But a solicitude for your welfare, which cannot end but with my life, and the apprehension of danger natural to that solicitude, urge me, on an occasion like the present, to offer to your solemn contemplation, and to recommend to your frequent review, some sentiments, which are the result of much reflection, of no inconsiderable observation, and which appear to me all-important to the permanency of your felicity as a people. These will be offered to you with the more freedom, as you can only see in them the disinterested warnings of a parting friend, who can possibly have no personal motive to bias his counsel.

National Union Essential to Collective Happiness.

The unity of government, which constitutes you one people, is also now dear to you. It is justly so; for it is a main pillar in the edifice of your real independence, the support of your tranquillity at home, your peace abroad; of your safety; of your prosperity; of that very liberty which you so highly prize.

But as it is easy to foresee that from different causes and from different quarters much pains will be taken, many artifices employed, to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth; as this is the point in your political fortress against which the batteries of internal and external enemies will be most constantly and actively (though often covertly and insidiously) directed, it is of infinite moment that you should properly estimate the immense value of your national union to your collective and individual happiness; that you should cherish a cordial, habitual and immovable attachment to it; accustoming yourselves to think and speak of it as of the palladium of your political safety and prosperity; watching for its preservation with jealous anxiety; discountenancing whatever may suggest even a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned; and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the rest, or to enfeeble the sacred ties which now link together the various parts.

For this you have every inducement of sympathy and interest. Citizens, by birth or choice, of a common country, that country has a right to concentrate your affections. The name of America, which belongs to you, in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism, more than any appellation derived from local discriminations. With slight shades of difference, you have the same religion, manners, habits and political principles. You have in a common cause fought and triumphed together; the independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint councils and joint efforts, of common dangers, sufferings and successes.

In contemplating the causes which may disturb our Union, it occurs as a matter of serious concern, that any ground should have been furnished for characterizing parties by geographical discriminations Northern and Southern, Atlantic and Western; whence designing men may endeavor to excite a belief that there is a real difference of local interests and views.

One of the expedients of party to acquire influence, within particular districts, is to misrepresent the opinions and aims of other districts. You cannot shield yourselves too much against the jealousies and heartburnings which spring from these misrepresentations; they tend to render alien to each other those who ought to be bound together by fraternal affection.

To the efficacy and permanency of your union, a government for the whole is indispensable. No alliances, however strict, between the parts can be an adequate substitute; they must inevitably experience the infractions and interruptions which all alliances in all times have experienced.

Towards the preservation of your government, and the permanency of your present happy state, it is requisite, not only that you steadily discountenance irregular oppositions to its acknowledged authority, but also that you resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretences. One method of assault may be to effect, in the forms of the constitution, alterations, which will impair the energy of the system, and thus to undermine what cannot be directly overthrown.

No Difference of Local Interests and Views.

I have already intimated to you the danger of parties in the State, with particular reference to the founding of them on geographical discrimination. Let me now take a more comprehensive view, and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party, generally.

This spirit, unfortunately, is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind. It exists under different shapes in all governments, more or less stifled, controlled, or repressed; but in those of the popular form it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy.

It is important, likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution, in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism. A just estimate of that love of power, and proneness to abuse it, which predominates in the human heart, is sufficient to satisfy us of the truth of this position.

The necessity of reciprocal checks in the exercise of political power, by dividing and distributing it into different depositories, and constituting each the guardian of the public weal against invasions by the others, has been evinced by experiments ancient and modern, some of them in our country and under our own eyes. To preserve them must be as necessary as to institute them. If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an

"The political conduct of Washington was always guided by these maxims. ... He succeeded in maintaining his country in a state of peace while all other nations of the globe were at war."

(Alexis de Tocqueville in "DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA")

"... Washington stands alone and unapproachable, like a snow peak rising above its fellows into the clear air of the morning, with a dignity, constancy and purity which have made him the ideal type of civic virtue to succeeding generations. No greater benefit could have befallen the republic than to have such a type set from the first before the eye and mind of the people."

(Rt. Hon. James Bryce, former British Ambassador, in "THE AMERICAN COMMONWEALTH")

THE Farewell Address was prepared and published nearly six months before Washington's official term had expired. It is dated September 19, 1798, as may be seen in the autograph original, now in the Lenox Library, New York. Mr. Lenox purchased the original from the family of the printer Claypoole, by whom it was published in Philadelphia, and to whom the manuscript, wholly in Washington's handwriting, with all its interlineations, corrections and erasures, was given by Washington himself. (It is here reproduced in slightly abridged form.)

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, in his Life of Washington, writes: ".....no man ever left a nobler political testament. Through much tribulation he had done his great part in establishing the government of the Union, which might have come to naught without his commanding influence. .... Now from the heights of great achievement he turned to say farewell to the people whom he so much loved, and whom he had so greatly served. Every word was instinct with the purest and wisest patriotism. .... His admonitions were received by the people at large with profound respect, and sank deep into the public mind. As the generations have come and gone, the farewell address has grown dearer to the hearts of the people, and the children and children's children of those to whom it was addressed have turned to it in all times and known that there was no room for error in following its counsel."

amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for, though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance free government in permanent evil any partial or transient benefit which the use can at any time yield.

Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism, who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician equally with the pious man ought to respect and to cherish them.

It is substantially true that virtue or morality is a necessary spring of popular government. The rule, indeed, extends with more or less force to every species of free government. Who, that is a sincere friend to it, can look with indifference upon attempts to shake the foundation of the fabric?

Public Opinion Should Be Enlightened.

Promote, then, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it is essential that public opinion should be enlightened.

Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all. Religion and morality enjoin this conduct; and can it be, that good policy does not equally enjoin it?

It will be worthy of a free, enlightened, and at no distant period a great nation, to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence. Who can doubt that in the course of time and things, the fruits of such a plan would richly repay any temporary advantages, which might be lost by a steady adherence to it?

Can it be that Providence has not connected the permanent felicity of a nation with its virtue? The experiment, at least, is recommended by every sentiment which ennobles human nature. Alas! is it rendered impossible by its vices?

In the execution of such a plan, nothing is more essential than that permanent, inveterate antipathies against particular nations, and passionate attachments for others, should be excluded; and that, in place of them, just and amicable feelings towards all should be cultivated. The nation which indulges towards another an habitual hatred, or an habitual fondness, is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interest.

Antipathy in one nation against another disposes each more readily to offer insult and injury, to lay hold of slight causes of umbrage, and to be haughty and intractable when accidental or trifling occasions of dispute occur. Hence, frequent collisions, obstinate, envenomed and bloody contests. The nation, prompted by ill-will and resentment, sometimes impels to war the government, contrary to the best calculations of policy. The government sometimes participates in the national propensity, and adopts through passion what reason would reject; at other times, it makes the animosity of the nation subservient to projects of hostility instigated by pride, ambition, and other sinister and pernicious motives. The peace often, sometimes perhaps the liberty, of nations has been the victim.

So likewise, a passionate attachment of one nation for another produces a variety of evils. Sympathy for the favorite nation, facilitating the illusion of an imaginary common interest in cases where no real common interest exists, and infusing into one the enmities of the other, betrays the former into a participation in the quarrels and wars of the latter, without adequate inducement or justification.

Foreign Influence A Baneful Foe.

It leads also to concessions to the favorite nation of privileges denied to others, which is apt doubly to injure the nation making the concessions, by unnecessarily parting with what ought to have been retained, and by exciting jealousy, ill-will, and a disposition to retaliate, in the parties from whom equal privileges are withheld. And it gives to ambitious, corrupted, or deluded citizens (who devote themselves to the favorite nation), facility to betray or sacrifice the interests of their own country, without odium, sometimes even with popularity; gilding with the appearances of a virtuous sense of obligation, a commendable deference for public opinion, or a laudable zeal for public good, the base or foolish compliances of ambition, corruption, or infatuation.

As avenues to foreign influence in innumerable ways such attachments are particularly alarming to the truly enlightened and independent patriot. How many opportunities do they afford to tamper with domestic factions, to practise the arts of seduction, to mislead public opinion, to influence or awe the public councils! Such an attachment of a small or weak, towards a great and powerful nation, dooms the former to be the satellite of the latter.

Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence (I conjure you to believe me, fellow-citizens), the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake, since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government. But that jealousy, to be useful, must be impartial; else it becomes the instrument of the very influence to be avoided, instead of a defence against it.

Excessive partiality for one foreign nation, and excessive dislike of another, cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots who may resist the intrigues of the favorite, are liable to become suspected and odious; while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people, to surrender their interests.

The great rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible. So far as we have already formed engagements, let them be fulfilled with perfect good faith. Here let us stop.

Europe's Primary Interests Not Our Concern.

Europe has a set of primary interests, which to us have none, or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves, by artificial ties, in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics, or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality, we may at any time resolve upon, to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel.

Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalry, interest, humor, or caprice?

It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world; so far, I mean, as we are now at liberty to do it; for let me not be understood as capable of patronizing infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy. I repeat it, therefore, let those engagements be observed in their genuine sense. But, in my opinion, it is unnecessary and would be unwise to extend them.

Taking care always to keep ourselves, by suitable establishments, on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies.

Harmony, liberal intercourse with all nations, are recommended by policy, humanity and interest. But even our commercial policy should hold an equal and impartial hand; neither seeking nor granting exclusive favors or preferences; consulting the natural course of things; diffusing and diversifying by gentle means the streams of commerce, but forcing nothing; establishing with powers so disposed, in order to give trade a stable course, to define the rights of our merchants, and to enable the government to support them, conventional rules of intercourse, the best that present circumstances and mutual opinion will permit, but temporary, and liable to be from time to time abandoned or varied, as experience and circumstances shall dictate.

Disinterested Favors From Abroad An Illusion.

Constantly keeping in view, that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favors from another; that it must pay with a portion of its independence for whatever it may accept under that character; that, by such acceptance, it may place itself in the condition of having given equivalents for nominal favors, and yet of being reproached with ingratitude for not giving more.

There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation. It is an illusion, which experience must cure, which a just pride ought to discard.

In offering to you, my countrymen, these counsels of an old and affectionate friend, I dare not hope they will make the strong and lasting impression I could wish; that they will control the usual current of the passions, or prevent our nation from running the course which has hitherto marked the destiny of nations.

But, if I may even flatter myself that they may be productive of some partial benefit, some occasional good; that they may now and then recur to moderate the fury of party spirit, to warn against the mischiefs of foreign intrigue, to guard against the impostures of pretended patriotism; this hope will be a full recompense for the solicitude for your welfare, by which they have been dictated.

How far in the discharge of my official duties I have been guided by the principles which have been delineated, the public records and other evidences of my conduct must witness to you and to the world. To myself, the assurance of my own conscience is, that I have at least believed myself to be guided by them.

Though, in reviewing the incidents of my administrations, I am unconscious of intentional error, I am nevertheless too sensible of my defects not to think it probable that I may have committed many errors. Whatever they may be, I fervently beseech the Almighty to avert or mitigate the evils to which they may lead. I shall also carry with me the hope that my country will never cease to view them with indulgence; and that, after forty-five years of my life dedicated to its service with an upright zeal, the faults of incompetent abilities will be consigned to oblivion, as myself must soon be to the mansions of rest.

Relying on its kindness in this as in other things, and actuated by that fervent love towards it, which is so natural to a man who views in it the native soil of himself and his progenitors for several generations, I anticipate with pleasing expectation that retreat, in which I promise myself to realize, without alloy, the sweet enjoyment of partaking, in the midst of my fellow-citizens, the benign influence of good laws under a free government, the ever favorite object of my heart, and the happy reward, as I trust, of our mutual cares, labors and dangers.

Temperance Talks
(By the Temperance Educational League.)

No. 2.—The Drinking Habit vs. The Saving Habit.

How many men realize what it costs to be a moderate drinker? One is accustomed to think of the small cost of a single drink or an occasional night at the saloon, and with that dismisses the subject from his mind.

The average man overlooks the fact that he is a creature of habit and before he realizes what has happened he has become a regular customer of the saloon, acquires a well developed thirst for liquor and is spending from $4.00 to $10.00 per month.

From statistics it appears that $60.00 annually is much less than the average drinking man spends for liquor. We have made the estimate low because our present purpose is to make it as near the minimum as possible, and we want to estimate the cost of the drinking habit during a period of years or a lifetime.

If a boy begins to drink at twenty it will probably cost him $500.00 before he is forty; $1,500.00 before he is fifty; $2,000.00 before he is sixty; and $2,500.00 before he is seventy. If he spends more than that, the total cost will be proportionally larger, and these figures do not represent the entire loss because they do not include interest upon the money. If he is a laboring man, and a family he will probably be poor all his life and his family poorly fed and scantily clothed, but in his old age he will have the satisfaction of realizing that he has been a consistent and faithful slave most of his life to the drink habit and that the saloons, brewers and distillers have his money, and that he should have saved for himself and family.

On the other hand if a young man of twenty will annually deposit in the savings bank fifty dollars and keep principal and interest invested at 3 per cent annual interest, at the age of thirty years he will have $690.40, at forty $1,383.50, at fifty $2,456.15, at sixty $3,893.15, and at seventy $5,806.05. Not interest, but a mortgage loan money on good real estate mortgages at 5 per cent or 6 per cent annually and in that manner the returns may be made correspondingly larger.

The Temperance Educational League advocates thrift and economy; it classifies inebriating liquors as an item of waste and extravagance, for the average man and calls the reader's attention to the foregoing figures as showing that the saving habit is more profitable than the drinking habit.

FOUR POSTAL INSPECTORS DISMISSED FROM SERVICE
Four postal inspectors, one of whom is a Janesville resident, and one other well known in this city, and Gen. James E. Stuart, chief postoffice inspector, were ousted Friday by an order from Washington. All worked from stations outside of Chicago. They are: J. P. Walker of this city, J. H. Halloway, Danville, Ill.; T. S. Kittredge, formerly of Janesville, now of Medford, Wis.; and T. C. Wall, An Arbor, Mich. These six inspectors were named for dismissal in the same order, which was a surprise to the post office officials.

"All Cats look grey—at Night!"
JUST Rubber and Canvas—pumped full of air!

So thinks the Tire User who buys Pneumatics "Blind," without comparison after thorough investigation.

So thinks the Car Owner who buys from the Cut Price Dealer, the "just as good" Tire on which that Dealer quotes him the biggest discount off a Price List specially printed up for that purpose.

So thinks the Man whose Tire bill averages nearly half of his entire Season's running Expense, when it does not average one-fourth, if he would only "work his head" and, once for all, learn the Tire Game.

THERE are Car Owners who regularly get 25% to 50% MORE Mileage, per Dollar invested in Tires, than do the Owners of other Cars driven with equal care, under equivalent road conditions.

The latter type of Owner is apt to conclude offhand (from his own experience) that all Tires must be Short-lived and Unsatisfactory.

Now this is to tell him that there is as much difference between the Mileage and Resilience of different brands of Tires, when the facts are investigated, and proven through actual Service, as there is difference between the Color of Cats—when viewed by Daylight.

This is to inform him that three Rubber Factories using precisely the same quantity and quality of Materials might, and sometimes do, produce (through the difference in their Rubber EXPERIENCE and efficiency methods) Tires of such widely different Mileage Results as to average 3000 Miles, 4000 Miles, and 5000 Miles respectively—under parallel road conditions.

COST of production is therefore no sure guide to the Mileage and Resilience which can be put into such a subtle and "temperamental" product as the Rubber in a Pneumatic Tire.

And, though The B. F. Goodrich Co., can, and does, put the most Mileage per Dollar invested by the User, into Goodrich Safety-Tread Tires, they do not interpret this as a reason why they should charge a higher price, to include an Insurance Premium which would place their "Adjustment Basis" beyond the safe and reasonable minimum that Bad Roads and Careless Driving make necessary.

Because of its Manufacturing Advantages, its Precision Methods, and its Waste-reducing Processes (resulting from its 4 years' EXPERIENCE in the working of Rubber), The B. F. Goodrich Co. can afford to and does, offer the greatest Mileage in Tires at the lowest price per Mile.

It sells the standard grade of Goodrich Safety Tires at 10% to 30% lower prices than other non-skid brands which "Guarantee" greater Mileage but cannot prove delivery of greater Mileage in actual use.
